WHITE MOUNTAIN APACHE TEXTS.

By Pliny Earle Goddard.

Introduction.

The linguistic material here presented in the form of texts with accompanying literal translations was chiefly secured in 1910 on the San Carlos Reservation. A number of bands of Apache from the region of the White Mountains preferred to remain on the Gila River above its junction with the San Carlos River when others were permitted to return to their former homes. Under the circumstances existing at the time the texts could be secured in the neighborhood of San Carlos more advantageously than on the White Mountain Reservation. That first given, dictated by the father of Frank Crockett, is the better material, from the standpoint of phonetic transcription. In large part this was due to the fact that the work was done with father and son; but by that time also considerable familiarity with the language had been acquired by the recorder. The long narrative by Noze supplies a fairly abundant vocabulary with a wealth of grammatical forms. These texts taken together with those from the San Carlos given above will perhaps be sufficient for the Apache of Arizona except for the Tonto who live some distance west and whose dialect is rather different.

From there defeated they two started back they say. Bitcill'ehe defeated they two came back they say. | From there Tsitena'a place called they two came to water they say. There large snake | it is called they two came to they say. Porcupine was there. "My-cousin, porcupine here | is lying," he said they say. Then he killed-it they say. Then he buried it[1] | they say. The same night middle he uncovered it they say. Then Naiyenezgani | did not eat it. Then Naiyenezgani his cousin only he just one | ate it they say. "My-cousin," he said they say. "Bitter it tastes," he said they say. | "Try eating it, my cousin," he said they say. Then the same night they two lay down again they say. | Then they went to sleep they say. Then this man snake he had eaten when it was day in here | in-the water inside he had crawled along they say.

From there he started home they say. Just so when the sun-was going down when it was yellow everywhere Tatakowa | where it-is called he came back they say. "From Tsitena'a early this morning I came," he said | they say. These all kinds people then they say. Then "What place is called?" | they said they say, eagle people. "Here Pelican (?) old man he only. Earth | on it everywhere I have seen, he is always saying," they said they say. "Pelican | old man send word to." Then Pelican old man they notified | they say. Then from there Pelican old man cane he walked with they say. Then | he sat down they say. "Pelican old man 'Every-where earth on it | I have seen' you are always saying. 'From Tsitena'a early today I started' he says," they told him | they say. "Hee hee," he said they say. "Not near by it must have happened," he said they say. "From there | when I was flying back from Tsite-na'a, when I was flying back then twelve days | in here just with me sunset the earth was yellow," he said they say.

There he spent the night with them they say. "Last night then something he ate they say. | Then snake he had eaten it," he said they say. "Then in here he had crawled into the water," | they say. Then these eagle people all, whirlwind black he too | they say. Sun too they say. Moon too they say. All they say. | Gan people too they say. There Tsitena'a, they started they say. Then | there they came they say, Tsitena'a, they say.

Then there sun in his presence they say. Moon too in her-presence | they say. Then black Gan turquoise hoop he rolled in-the water they say. Then | water raised up they say so much.

[1] There should be a final t. It probably was not heard because of the following dj.

"Skull who kills | here soon he comes. Inside room inside come-in," | in vain they told him they say. "No, I will lie here," he said they say. Then | there he lay down they say. Then at night skull-who kills coming he heard | they say. "Dil," he heard they say. Then stone he took up they say. Here he was walking | they say. He hit him they say. Then skull who kills he killed they say.

Hornets eagles when they sting eagles they all die they say. Those he took out | they say. Those hornets all he killed they say. Wasps eagles | when they sting they all die they say. Those wasps all he killed | they say. Then yellow-jackets eagles when they sting they all die | they say. Those yellow-jackets all he killed they say.

Then tumble weeds eagles with them roll on them they kill them they say. Then | all among them he beat they say.

Then eagle old women he questioned they say. "Where something is living?" | he said to her they say. "Here wood-rats their-houses are," they say. "There | where they go out | wood-rats they-bring back with them," she said they say. There he started out | they say. There cactus where it is to it he came they say. Then night it was | they say. Then there he lay down they say. Then toward the east | people were shouting he heard they say. "Down-here," they said he heard they say. Then | (insect) fleeing it was-going they say. Then (insect) he killed | they say. Then stars were people arrows they were carrying | they say. Then (insect) over it one jumped they say. they hunted for | they say. Gans where they lived they two went it-seems they say. Then in vain | to them they gave food they say. From there when they two came back in vain they gave them food | they say. They would not eat it they say. Gans where they lived it seemed they had eaten they say.

Then one Indian became ill they say. His eyes were crooked | they say. His mouth too was crooked they say. His arms were-crooked | they say. His hands too were crooked they say. His legs | too were crooked they say. Then "What shall we do?" they said | they say. Their mother it seems they told her they say. "Deer its hide | without a hole in it, turquoise its forehead tied on, soft-feather tied through it its forehead | tied on make," she said they-say. "Black stone soft feathers through it make | buckskin be-tween its eyes tie on it also," she said they say. "Red stone soft feathers | through it also tie on," she said they say. "White-shell soft feathers through it | also tie on," she said they say. Then "Those children | top of their foot put it," she said they say.

His foot they put it on they say. Then over there (?) he-threw it | they say. His foot with he threw it they say. That one his foot with here | he kicked it they say. Four times it was they say.

Then "Wood bring in," he said they say. Then "This one on him let us dance | sick man on him let us dance," he said they-say. Then "All of you | come together," he said they say. Then "Man on let there be a dance," he said they say. | Then "he-notified them," they say. Then people all | came together they say. Then "Here sick man here bring him," he said | they say. Here he built a fire they say. Then all people came together, | they say.

"Here where we are going to sing all of you come together," he said they say. Then | all people came together they say. Then they began to sing they say. | Then Black Gan his grandchildren these two being leaders they began to dance they say.

Then he stood up they say. "To you I will speak," he said they say. "One | shall not go away," he said they say. Then "Danger-ous thing to you | will happen," he said they say. Then four songs they sang they say.

Then here east bull roarer made a noise, here bull roarer made a-noise they say. | Here west a noise was made again they say. Now this way it made a noise again | they say. The Doings of Coyote.

Long ago Coyote "They are all dying," they told him they say. Then this hair brush | this skin dresser muller then having tied-them together "They will come back | these if they float only," he said. Then they sank they say. | Then they sank because they-did not come back they say.

Then snow fell they say. This being flour it snowed they say.| Then the same Coyote "Ice I am chewing," he said they say. Then ice it became they say.

Then deer their horns too tallow they say. Then the same-Coyote "Bone I chew," he said again they say.

Coyote also felt sick they say. His daughter was pretty they-say. Coyote | when he got sick then "Throw me away," his wife he told they say. Then | "They will be playing hoop-and-pole," he-said they say. Then "Panther quiver the one who has | him give-our daughter for a wife," he said they say. "Prairie dogs he will-have in his hand," he said they say.

Then "Where they were playing the one standing give her to him," he said they say. | Then there when he was standing she gave her to him they say. Then his daughter | he married they say. Then his own daughter he married, lice for she looked | they say. Then back of his head wart they say. Then "Here lice | usually stay," he said. Then his daughter lice for him she looked they say. | Then Coyote he was asleep they say. "Then why because does-he say it," she thought they say. Here back of his head wart they say. Then Coyote when he was asleep under him she slipped-out they say.

Then her mother she told they say. Then "My father it is the back of his head | wart," she said they say. Then stone large-one she picked up they say. Then | there she was going to hit-him with it they say. The crown of his head stone she was holding then | as she was going to hit him with it her shadow he saw they say. Then he ran out from under | they say.

Then he trotted off they say, here toward the east they say. Then | where a camp was he trotted they say. "There his daughter his wife is is trotting along," they all said | they say. Then "Cici cici cici," they heard his anus. | Then Coyote scabby they hit they say. Then "Wai," | he said they say.

[2] So recorded but usually spoken as, bi tsi zil.

Then Coyote was a person Coyote he turned into they say. Then Coyote drove them in | they say, mules he drove in they say. Then five he smothered, | "Those mules five here they will call it," he said they say. | "I wonder what smothered them five he-smothered?" "Why their throats he skinned?" | he said they say. "These Coyote his water, his springs it will be named," | he said they say.

Then coyotes people they say. Then coyotes when were-persons whiskey | they say they all drank they say. Then coyotes when they were people whiskey | they drank everywhere they went-shouting they say. Then outside they barked | they say.

Here my yucca fruit lies. All.

Creation Myth.

Then many were living together there, maiden. Then that maiden went away, | mountain high its top. Then that mountain-high on it she went up. | Sun first it strikes. Then sun his breath between her legs | it shines in. Her skirt up she pulled. Then four-times she went up they say. | Then fourth time his breath between-her legs shone in it became they say.

Then pregnant she became they say.. "The girl is not married she is with child," | everybody was saying they say. There four days then when she had gone | from there she came back four days. Then eight when days were she had a baby | they say. Then four days after it was born it stood up they say.

Then his hands fingers between were webbed. His feet too between his toes | too. His eyebrows too were none. His eyelashes too were none. His hair | one in a place formed a line they say. This his ears too were round they say. | Nevertheless just this his meatus hole was they say. "He doesn't look like a person," | they-all said. Then four days then when he stood up well | he-walked they say. Then children with he played they say.

She went away again they say, his mother. Then his mother went away again | they say. Sun under there water was dripping they say. Then | water dripping under her thighs she placed they say. Then her hips | in water dripped they say. Then four days she did it they say. Then | algae hanging down from it water flowing under that it dripped they say.

Then pregnant she became they say. Then four days were they say. Then sun started to go they say. Just in here | door inside he opened they say. Then ropes spotted he had in his hand | they say. Then one him he gave they say. Other boy too him he gave they say. | Then, "Which one my horses catch," he said they say.

Then horses those inclosed were running around they say. In-the center only one did not move | they say. Then there horse yellow his forehead white spot small | then his mane to the ground reached they say. Then horse raised his head toward him | he-started they say. Then horses from each other they moved they-say. Then | rope toward it he threw they say. Then he lassoed they say. Then to him | it came they say. Then, "Now you horse another you catch," he said they say. | Then, "Who told you?" he said they say. Then stallion | around the edge was running around they say. Then he was not gentle they say. His mane | to the-ground reached down they say.

Then their fly, "That his horse is," he told them they say. Then, "Not gentle | you think, not wild he is." Then, "His horses both from him | take out," he said to them they say, their fly.

Then rope he carried in they say in there. Then stallion | the-edge was running around they say. Then toward him it was-running they say. Then close | when he saw him he stopped they-say. Then back he ran again they say. | Then he lassoed it they say. Then the one lassoed whinneying toward him | trotted they say. Then his arm it nosed they say, both sides. | Then horse yellow by him he led up they say. Then the yellow one | a-mare they say.

Then sun then, "Just so my children you ride them about," he said | they say. Then, "Earth on with you ride them back," he said they say. | Then, "What horse that which lies on we came-for it," he said they say. Boys | said that they say. Then, "What do you mean horse on it lies?" he said | they say. "I do not know," he said they say. Then the younger to him | spoke they say. Then, "Horse on it which lies you do not know this horse | in the inclosure any on it not put again," he said they say. Then sun | spoke they say. "You are smart beyond me; who is it you think you | makes?" he said they say. Then, "What you us makes us our talk | too smart because you made us we are smart," he told-him they say.

Then, "Those horses bridles halters blankets saddles | give-us," he said they say. Then away from them he turned they say. |

He opened the door they say. "Inside go," he said they say. Then inside | they went they say. Saddles were piled up they say. Its horn bridle over it |-hung they say. All under it halters were-piled up they say.

Then not yet when they had gone in fly inside flew they say. | Then saddles all on horse blankets lay they say. Two | only none they say. The other sun under was sitting they say. The-other sun | where it sets under was sitting they say. One blue they say. The other | yellow they say. Then their fly already by their ear when had lighted again, | sun spoke they say. "These saddles which ever one you want take," | he said they say.

Then their fly told them they say. "This saddle good you-think but | it is not a saddle. Then that saddle blue, that saddle | yellow, those his saddles are," he said they say. Then, "Those saddle | yellow sits his saddle is just by it blanket yellow | two which lie are his right by them halter which lies is his also, | over-there saddle which sits is his saddle the blue one, just by it | blanket blue which lies is his, just by it halter | which lies is his." Then over there they went they say.

Then, "Hurry saddle pick out," he said they say, sun. | Then one over there went they say. The other over there went they-say. | Then saddle by itself down came they say. Blanket too | then saddle on it it dropped they say. Halter also on it | jumped they say. Saddle down went they say. Also blanket also | they-say. Then saddle on it dropped they say. Halter | too on it jumped they say. Then saddle move began | they say, both. Then, "Gej," said they say. "Tsil," he heard they say.

Then sun from them moved they say. Then from his pocket | silk black two times its border white goes around he took out | they say. Then his eyes water with he wiped off they say. Then, "Just that | for I reared you," he said they say. Then sun walked | they say. Horse near then saddle did not take hold of they say.

Their fly, "No," he said they say. "Sun just himself will fix-it," | he said they say. "It belongs to you," he said they say. Then, "Those all | alive are," he said they say. "Over there horse those-on too those too alive | are," he said they say. Then "Just his-only he handles them," he said they say. Then, | "Those saddles by themselves on jump those horses," he said | they say. Fly said it they say.

Then halter is not they say, saddle on which was lying. Then | bridle was not they say, also saddle on which was lying. Then saddle blanket | was gone they say, saddle on which was lying. Then saddle was gone | they say. Then saddle blue which was lying on it halter was gone | they say. Then bridle was gone again they say. The other saddle blanket that too | was gone again they-say. Saddle was gone again they say. Then sun | where he stood he spoke they say. "My sons, here come," he said they say. | Then they two went out again they say. Then the doors both were shut | they say, saddles their gate, horses their gate too. Then sun | toward him they two started they say, he was standing toward him. Then horses between | he stood they say. The other-side horses their faces projected they say, the other side also. | Then holding them he stood they say. Then from there they-started to go they say.

Then the sun, "Here in front of me," he said they say. Then in front of him | when they walked behind horses he led; then four doors they went by | they say. Then sun his house in front of post stood up | they say. Then sun horses he was leading one toward it he led | they say. The other also they say. Then no rope-was on them they say. Nicely | they stood they say.

Then his house in chairs four were standing they say. | Then just one by itself stood they say. Then inside his children | chairs on them they sat they say. One his wife on it | she sat they say. Then, "My boys, dangerous place you will come." Then, | "I am going-to teach you," he said they say. "Well, I will teach you," he said they say. Then, | "These horses know dangers where you go back," he said they say. Then, | "My wife, is pleased; well she treats you because of it. This horse one her horse | is. The other mine," he said they say. "Saddle, bridle, halter, saddle blanket | also," he said they say. "Mine saddle, bridle, halter, | saddle blanket, rope, also mine too," he said they say. Then, "Your kinsfolk | among you will go back," he said they say. Then, "Near it is; | hurry," they say. "One something I will give you," he said they-say.

Then sun stood up they say. Then inside on a shelf | he began-to reach they say. Then knife he picked up they say. It was like-a sword they say. | Then so much he turned around they say. Then arrows bow with he picked them up | they say. Arrow-head it had they say. Arrows two they say. "These I give you," he said | they say. Then, "Just only these are you giving us?" he-said they say. "Our mother nothing | does she know? Nothing she gives us?" he said they say.

Then, "A little we will eat," he said they say. Then they ate. | They started they say. Then sun his wife there where she sat | table on it food everywhere covered they say. Somebody | prepared it they say. There they began to eat they say.

Then sun his wife belt boy elder | gave it to they say. Belt spotted, its edge yellow hung down they say. | Then all they-finished eating they say.

Then, "Well, my boys, what shall we do? Where you return down | you go?" he said they say. Then horse where he stood they went they say. | Then, "My boys it will be well. Stallion blue will go in front," | he said they say. "Wait, horses on them you-sit," he said they say. Then stirrup, | saddle horn he held they-say. "Both then now you sit on," | he said they say. Then they-sat on them they say.

Then his house some distance where the sun rises toward it-stands up | they say. Post white its hair to the ground it reached they say. Then ground | its top so high water falls on it they say. Then, "That around it horses go around with you | four times let it be. Then right there where I stand you come back," | he-said they say. Then that all they say.

Then sun his wife there she walked to they say. Then, | "Old man, your children well you tell them," she said they say. "Horse blankets two, | halters two, bridles two, ropes two, saddles | two, all you enumerate," she said they say. Then, "My-children, | what can I do for you?" he said they say. "Well, go-back," he said they say. | "I am acquainted with you," he said they say. Then, "My boys, these saddle blankets, | you must-treat well," he said they say. "This horse blue let him lead," he said | they say. "Halfway between the earth and sky trail he-knows," he said they say. "From there onward horse | yellow will lead," he said they say. "That one also trail knows. He-must not get out of the trail with you," | he said they say.

Then, "Earth on it where they go back with you, your mother where she lives, | when you get back, four nights you must tie them-out," he said they say. "Yellow one here | you must tie out," he said they say. "Horse blue here must be," he said they say. |

[1] Corrected to nai dja lɛ ga, but see the form two lines below which may be contracted from na no' dja lɛ ga, the 2nd plu. imperative.

"Then four days somewhere land where it is good you must-unsaddle them," | he said they say. "First people among them you must ride them," he said they say. | Then, "Some place land where it is good you must unsaddle them.

"Then toward the sunrise white you must hang a blanket. South under | black you must hang a blanket. West under horse blanket yellow | you must hang. Dipper under horse blanket blue you-must hang," | he said they say. "Saddle, bridle, halter, rope camp | you must bring," he said they say. Then, "What because-of it I tell you this | you will think about it," he said they say. Then, "Well men it may make you (?) I tell you this," | he said they say.

Then his property his sons for them on each other he placed them they say. Then on them | they lay they say. Then "Four days you must turn them loose. Then four days | to them you go, early," he said they say. "Anywhere land where it is good where canyons-come together," | he said they say. Then, "Four days to them when you go back this way | you must hold out your hands," he said they say. "You, too," he said they say. Then, | "Your palms while they lick catch them," he said they say. Then, "Four days | to them when you go back what because of it I tell you this you-will think about." | Then, "Four they come together just there horses with it will be full," he said they say. | Then, "Your horses toward you must hold out your hands," he said they say. Then, | "Your palms they will lick," he said they say. Then, "You catch-them, your horses | you catch. Horse blankets together you will-put," he said they say. Then "On them put them (saddles)." | Then, "Ride around while the sun goes down," he said they say. Then | "The sun sets," he said they say. Then, "Inside turn them again," he said they say. | Then, "In there when you turn them loose the-next day there go back," he said | they say. Then, "Something-will have happened," he said they say. Then, "Just one thing when I say to you | you may go back," he said they say.

Then with them they started back they say. Where the trail-comes up then from there with them when they stopped | his horses all over he ran his hand they say. Their legs, their feet, | their faces, their ears, their foretops their manes, their backs he ran his hand-over | they say. Then, "My horses goodbye," he said they say. "My boys, well go with them," | he said they say. "Earth on go," he said they say. His horses | he said it to they say. Then, "Earth on your food is," he said | they say. "So much just this,"

[1] The final sound was listened for in the preceding occurrences of the word but was heard only in this instance.

Then, "These horses one near it do not come," he said they-say. "One here we stake out; | the other here we stake out, also," he said they say. "Four during days they are tied because | I say-it," he said they say. "Soon there you may go," he said they say. Then, | "Do not go before four days," he told them they say, their horses.

Then their horses to them they went they say. Then they-saddled them | they say. Then houses among they rode around they say. Then at sunset | horses where they turned them loose, they rode them back they say. Then where they turned them loose, they rode them back | they say. Then a plain where four they come-together they say. Then horse blanket | east, horse blanket white he hung up they say. South under | black he hung up they say. Horse blanket yellow west under it | he hung up they say. Horse-blanket blue dipper under it he hung up | they say.

Then their fly told them they say. "Horse blanket four places those hanging | with them there will be an enclosure, now," he said they say. "Four days then four when days are | to them come-again," he said they say. Then, "Four days are something differ-ent will be," | he said they say. Then, "Do not make a mistake," he said they say. "Your father that which he told you | do not miss," he said they say. "That because of it he told you," he said they-say. "Well | you remember it he told you," he said they say. "I, too, for you I will look after them, | sometimes," he said they-say.

Then they two went back they say. Camp saddle, bridle, halter, | rope too they brought they say. Then one day was they say. One | day was they say. One day was they say. Then fly, their fly there flew off | they say. Then, "Horses are many," he told them they say. "Where four they come together with them it is full," | he said they say. "When it is morning on their backs one can walk I guess it will be, when it is morning," | he said they-say.

Then again it was day they say. Then soon when the sun will-rise there they two started | they say. Ropes they were carrying they say. Then there they two came they say. There | up the-canyon horses white it was full of they say. Then this way horses | black with them it was full they say. Here horses yellow with it was full they say. | Then dipper under it horses blue with them it was full they say. Then | horse blankets all they-took down they say. Then they brought them together again | they-turn them loose," he said they say. "Then halters, ropes these | horses around them will be a guard," he said they say. Then, "These horses if they see you | they may stampede," he said they-say. Then, "That because of it I am telling you this," | he said they say. Then, "These horses for you will be good," he said | they say.

Then these horses they trotted they say. Then these horses behind them | they went back in line they say. Then these horses two whinneyed, they say. Then these | horses all whinneyed they say. Then ropes they took off them they say.

Then from there they two went back they say. To the camp they came back they say. | Then, "My mother here post set in-the ground," he said they say. "Here too; from there | pole smooth on top put horizontal," he said they say. Then, "This saddle | pole on it put. The other, also, the other side put it. The-saddle horn | east pointing," he said they say. Then, "Saddle its horn | bridle over it hang," he said they say. Then, "Horse-blanket, saddle | on it hang," he said they say.

Then, "My mother saddle those which lie then at night while-you think about it | let it dawn," he said they say. Then, "Well when you think about it, early | to them go out," he said they say. Then saddles two those were lying | the next day to them she-went out they say. Saddles four were lying there they say. Sad-dles | had been two they say. Then, "Those saddles those lying think about them," | he told her they say, his mother. Then the-next day was they say. Then saddles six | were lying they say. Then, "My child, truly you said it," she said they say. "Saddles | about them I thought, six lie there," she said they say. Then, "Your turn, | Tobatc'istcini, saddles when you think about let it-dawn," he said they say. Then, | "When it is day early to them go out," he told him they say. Then when it was day | to them he went out. Saddles eight lay there they say.

Then, "I am going over there, wait," he said they say, Nai-yenezgani. | "When the sun sets I will come back," he said they say. Then mountain where it points halter | where it lay he walked they-say. Then there halter where it lay sun | was standing they say. Then, "It is my father, I did not know you," he said they say. | "Thanks, to me you came down," he said they say. "To me you came down," he said | they say.

Then, "Hurry, my son horses around them let us go," he said they say. "Where | (sun) will be, horses around them we get around?"

Then horse yellow there he rode back they say. Then | he-unsaddled it, horse white he caught they say. Then horse | blue with it he drove back they say, to the camp. Then, "Let us go," he said to him | they say, to his brother. Then horses on them when they mounted horses they rode. Then | their mother to them she spoke they say. "My boys, that saddle yellow take off, | then this one white on it put," she said they say.

Then there they went back they say. Then to her when they-came back | horse whinneyed they say. His voice stallion blue, like his former horse, his voice was | they say. Another this direction whinneyed they say. That one mare yellow the voice sounded like, | the one that whinneyed they say. Their horses those which whinneyed they knew them. "Nevertheless, | my brother, our horses whin-neyed nevertheless nothing we can do," he said they say. | "Quickly," he said they say. Then horses where they were all to-gether toward them they two went, | they say. Then horses started-to run off they say. Horses separated each way they say. them," he said they say. "I, right here, I will sit my horse," | he said they say. Then horses among them he rode they say. Then | mare he caught they say. Then he led it there they say. Then man | rope he gave it to him they say. From there back horses he rode among they say. Then | stallion again he caught they say. Then he led it out they say. Then horses | six when he-had caught those ropes all they say.

Then he beckoned to him they say. Then the boy to him rode | they say. Then that boy, "Ropes only six were?" he said | they-say. "Yes, just six were; just six horses I caught," he said they-say. | Then, "Now, you; just here horse I will sit," he said they say. Then, | "Now I horses for them I caught," he said they say.

Then horses good ones only he picked out they say. Horses were alike then | horses all were good; some small were they-looked they say. | Then, "These saddles seven so many," he said they say. Then, "Just the saddles | did you make?" he said they say. Then, "Just so many just you may have," | he said they say. "Others just this way with you they will trot about nevertheless," he said they say. "Sometime | you may have them," he said they say. "For-you he knows about it; I, too, for you | I know about it," he said they say.

Then, "These horses you tie out," he said they say, "pretty-close." Then, | "To each other if they neigh they are covering them it will be," he said they say. Then, "Horses | if they foal, you will-know them. Then these horses among them if you turn them loose,| you will not know them," he said they say. Then, "Just these ropes | for you will look after them, they will know about them," he-said they say. Then, "Now | we horses we will drive back," he-said they say. "There horses you tie out," he said they say.

Then horses they drove back they say. Then he bridle he-hung up | they say. The other from him a different place he put it they say. Then saddle | horse blanket all he brought back they say, camp. Then camp | they two came back they say. Then midnight-was they say. Then when it was midnight they did not know it | they say.

Then day was they say. Day was again they say. Then two came | they say. Then houses there were many there they came they say. | Then, "Over there something runs about," he said they say. "This large mountain behind it | the other side they were-running," he said they say. "We do not know them," he said

Then, | "These horses wherever they went just tonight let them come back together," he said they say.

Then, "Where you live | is it?" he asked them they say. Then just as they themselves were | they are they say. Then their eyelashes, their eyebrows were none they say. | Their ears were round they-say. Then their heads were smooth | they say. Between their fingers, between their toes it was webbed they say.

Then "Somewhere people I supposed were living we thought it was," they said they say. | Then, "Something our kinsfolk all had killed. Only two of us were left," | he said they say. "When it-was night large stone two on each other we put. Under them | where we dug we spent the night," he said they say. Then, "Wait, if you please, where | are you going is it?" he said they say. Then to them he spoke they say. | "Somewhere we go. Right here only is good we think," he said they say. "These men | many we do-not like, over there," he said they say. "Right here with you we will stay," | he said they say. Then, "Wait, tonight we will-talk," he said they say. | Naiyenezgani said it they say.

Then night was they say. Then men four he invited they-say. Then, | "Being four here you come. These in your presence will talk," he said they say. "These | what they tell you well you-listen," he said they say. Men he spoke to | they say. Then, "You, question them," he said they say. [1] For di ɑl di jɛ, "these brothers of each other."

Then that man questioned them they say. Then, "This land what is it named | you live?" he said they say. Then, "What sort he kills you about him tell us, | well," he said they say. Then, "Land white plain where it is called | we lived," he said they say. Then, "That one some sort our folks who has been killing, | earth on it all over who has been killing nothing we can do to him, nothing | we are going to do," he said they say.

Then, "Now, you question them," he said they say. Then "(Inter.) | truly there were you living?" he said they say. "The-other, I do not believe you," he said | they say. Then, "Truly there we were living," he said they say. "We do not know how to-lie; | we would not fool you," he said they say. "It would not be well if we lied," | he said they say. Then, "All right," he said they say. Then, "These, they are camping, | someone he will kill, you will see, sometime," he said they say. Then, | "I am through," he said they say.

Then, "About him we are uneasy; why did you say it?" he said | they say. "We are afraid of it, from it when we were hiding here we came," he said they say. "Right here | with you all the time we will live," he said they say. Then, "Well when I was thinking | we two came here," he said they say.

Then, "Now, you question him," he said they say. Then, "Being just the same kind | you came," he said they say. Then, "These brothers for it they look," | he said they say. Then, "Now, I am through, all," he said they say. Then, | "Why for them did you leave a trail?" he said they say. Then "Our kinsfolk all were killed out | we came to you, we left a trail for him," he said they say.

Then just he spoke again they say. "Tomorrow we take a-sweatbath," he said | they say. "These two with them you will-take a sweatbath; because of it sweatbath for you we will make," | he said they say. Then, "These horses far away they have gone you said there | those horses already have come together again," he said they say. Then, "'These | something are going away,' those you said, those horses they are called," he said they say. "I, | so much," he said they say. "Those two to you he spoke," he said they say. | Then, "That something that kills you I cannot-tell you surely this way," | he said they say. "This sweatbath which he spoke of, quickly you build it," he said they say. | Toba-tc'istcini said they say. Then "Sweatbath you make; we | where-horses we go," he said they say.

Then horses just at night all had come back they say. Then

[1] Perhaps go is a suffix belonging on the preceding word. Compare p. 486, l. 32 where it is separated from n dɛ by ja.

[2] Perhaps incorrectly recorded for no' ta'.

Then their fly, "We cannot get to him," he said they say. Then, "Upstream | he is walking but his head back of it his eyes he has," he said they say. "In front of him | his eyes are none," he said they say. Then, "Something he carries, long, that with it | people he kills," he said they say. "On his nose when I sat 'human you smell like' | he told me," he said they say. Then, "Just you he looks like he is," he said | they say. Then, "Here you two go," he told them they say. "Head of the valley he comes-up | there he is accustomed to cross," he said they say. Then "Side by side you must stand," he said | they say.

"Again I, to him I will fly again," he said they say, fly. Then "Close | if he walks, I will tell you," he said they say. Then he was-walking along | they say. Then he flew back they say. While he-looked he stood they say. Then | side by side he stood they say. Then fly to them flew back they say. Then, "Right here | he is-coming up," he said they say. Then, "Here if he stops, his neck you must cut off," | he said to them they say. "Now you, must-shoot him," he said they say. Then | "Long thing which he holds people if he sees he strikes with it. Then people he kills with it | far away, people if he sees," he said they say.

Then here he was walking they say. Then he stopped they say. There he shot him | they say. The other one his neck he struck off they say. Then just the same way he stood again | they say. Right-there he shot him again they say. His neck he struck off again they say. | Backward his head fell they say. Just the same way he stood again they say. He shot him again | they say. His neck he cut off again they say. Then the other one | in front of him he ran then where his heart was he shot him again they say. | Then now his flesh flew into pieces they say. Way over his flesh covered the-ground | they say. Then his flesh quivered they say. Then Naiye' the one called | they killed they say.

Then their fly, "That because of it, Naiyenezgani his name for you he made. | That Tobatc'istcini that to him the monster both of you by each other the monster | you will kill because of that that because of name for you he will make. Your father he | before his eyes you did it. He was looking at you before he could-move for you he did it. | Then he came to you. [1] This paragraph was taken down from the dictation of Noze without the interpreter's help and is confused on that account.

for that reason good for you when he made it | with it you did it this for you I gave just this only that kind he said. The monster| his face that well you look at when you turn it over look at it," he said they say. Their fly | said it they say.

Then that one his face they turned over they say. Then here he is walking | just people his face is like, his face he had they say. He was that way, in front of him | a person could not come up to him they say. Then behind his head his eyes | he had they say. Then there his eyes were they say. Then his knife | on the edge of it was sharp they say. The handle only was good they say.

Then, "This knife let us take that they may find out," he said they say. Then, "This | knife if we do not take back, people will-not believe us. Not any monster | people used to kill we killed if we say, people will not believe us," he said | they say.

Then mountain white where it stands they landed again they-say. From there | beyond mountain white where it is horizontal they landed again they say. Camp | they two came back they say.

Then when they two got there, "People let them come together; children, too, all | let them come together," he said they say, Naiyenezgani. Then, "My mother, people toward each other | they are coming. This buckskin spread it down. On that arrows place them. This mine, too; | that, too," he said they say. Then "People let you come together," he said they say. Then | "Men two who had come here let them stand," he said they say. Then his brother, | "Here you stand; I here I will stand, too," he said they say. Then, "To them | I will speak," he said they say. "You, too, to them you speak," he said they say.

Then, "This because of it I say this to you," he said they say. "This, you never saw before, | this because you see, I am saying it-to you," he said they say. "These our father gave us," | he said they say. "This day you see it, that because I say this to you," he said they say. | Then, "Now, you, you speak to them," he said they say. Then, "This I, Tobatc'istcini | my name is," he said they say. Then, "These which are lying here our father gave to us; | that over there earth on it people with he has been killing. Naiye' | he is called, people all he had killed. These two those who are-sitting their kinsfolk all he had killed. | We killed him," he said they say.

Then, "Now, you, Naiyenezgani, to them you speak again," he said | they say. Then, "Here we went on top we went up. Beyond that mountain | on it we went up again. Beyond that moun-accustomed to come up," they say. Then | their fly to them when-he came back, "Right here is good," he said they say.

Then the brothers of each other to each other spoke they say. "Tobatc'istcini, what is the matter?" | he said they say. Naiyenezgani said it they say. Then Tobatc'istcini, | "You are the leader what-ever you say you before me you say it," he said | they say, Tobatc'istcini. Then, "Well, Tobatc'istcini, in vain I spoke to you," | he said they say. Naiyenezgani, "In front of him we two will go. Hail | thirty-two having points I will cause to fall on him," he said they say. "You?" he said they say. "I, | water hot will cause to-fall on him," he said they say.

Then, he walking in front of him they two went they say. Then the sky made a noise | they say. Then it began to rain they say. Behind him toward him they two walked | they say. Then the top-of his head he put his hands they say. Water hot with it rained | they say. Him only they could see they say. He he could not see-them they say. Then, "Well, | between you let him walk," he said they say, their fly. Then already he was weakened it became | they say. Water hot, hail hitting him he was weakened it was they say.

Then Naiyenezgani here stood they say. Tobatc'istcini | here stood they say. Then here he was walking they say. Then he spoke | they say. "It is a terrible time," he said they say. "I, too, where I have been it is dangerous, too," | he said they say. Then here he walked they say. Then up he drew his bow | they-say. He brought it down they say. Then he shot they say. That but to him both of us did it," he said they say. "I | alone, I could do it; he too alone, he could do it," he said they say, Naiyenezgani. | Then, "To him we did it because not long time we did it," he said they say. Then, | "This our father for us he helped for that reason not a long time we killed him," he said they say. | Then, "This Naiye' which is called you there if you went you could not do-anything with him," | he said they say. "Immediately he would kill-you. He would eat you up," he said they say. Then, | "This with people tribes all he killed," he said they say. "Soon to you | he was coming. Before there we knew it all he would have killed-us," he said | they say. "Earth on its border people are none. Just us only are left," | he said they say. Then, "Now this way people with it he killed I am telling you," | he said they say. "Now, over there you go," he said to them they say, the people. Then, | "This way people with it he killed I tell you," he said they say.

Then far bushes stood they say. Then there he threw it | they say. Then tree around it it went they say. Then that tree | like it was cut off it became they say. "This way people with it he was killing," he said they say. | Then, "Now well people we will live. Nobody you will bother," | he said they say. "Earth round it a man is starting. Just one day he will come-back," | he said they say. Then, "He will tell us about it," he said they say.

Then Tobatc'istcini started they say. Then his mother to him |

[1] Told by a White Mountain Apache named bilajaje, "little finger," a man known also as B, 30.

[2] Also recorded łegotdzą.

[3] Recorded di be łi' above, which is the usual form.

A Captive of the Navajo.

Like this boy I was taken captive. Navajo took me captive. At night, early when they were singing | when day was breaking I-was captured. Then just at daylight they came marching. Then | they were coming in line just then they ran after us, Navajo. Then all started to run away. | They shooting they began. Then this way I ran. Then they caught me, | camp inside as I was running. Then many people were killed. | Then women, too, I saw killed. Then with us they moved away. | Nine we were us they captured.

Then with us they started away. Then this direction along the-road with us | they went. Water brown water where it stands with-us they went past. Where the mountain projects | with us they went-past, bear where he went into the pool, beyond that I do not know-where with us | they went. From there onward at night with us they-went, that I do not know. | From there onward a large mountain east-of it with us they went. From there onward | among the Navajo with-us they arrived.

There with us they danced, at night. Then with us while-they were dancing it was day. | Then just one apiece to one another they gave us out, nine of us. Then | there I lived nine years. Then Navajo chief | to him he gave me. Then him with him I stayed. Then my brother I heard about him. | Bear its spring he came they said then but from me he hid it. Then | Mexican to him he was going to give me I heard. Then, "No," he said. | "Why to him I will give you away?" Then, "No," he said. Then | woman horse went back with her.

Truly my brother was there. Then Navajo, his wife another | they two came. Then sheep we were going to herd. There we were-herding them | on the mountain. Then while I did not tell him it was-morning. She did not say anything three | nights passed. Then fourth night passed I spoke. Then, "Your brother after you | he came," she said. "Do not tell him," he said. Then, "Here we two will stay, my grandchild," | she said to me. Then, "A woman (?) I will ar-range," she said to me. "Houses two | will be," she told me. Then, "Why far away shall I live?" I thought.

Then, "Bear its spring across you drive them sheep, horses too. Nine | when days are there I will go," he said. Then we-drove them. There we spent the night. | Then sheep I killed. Then when I had eaten it was morning. Then I drove the herd out, | early. Then sheep its shoulder I buried in the ashes. "My kinsfolk where-are they?" I was thinking. | Then horse after it I walked. Then horse I brought back. On it | I put them.[1] Then rope I tied on. Arrows too I held.

Then this direction horse I started to lead, early where I had-never seen. Then | where I went not knowing outside. Then wagon its road I found. | Navajo his house I went by. By the door I passed. Then in wild country | I spent the night. Somewhere I-spent the night then still night I went on. Then Tsenodǫzyu[2] | I went by. Then at sun down I came to a river. Then up I went-again. | There white man his house was. There white man boy cattle he was herding.

Then, "Well to him let me go," I thought. Then to him I came. Then, | "Where your father is his house?" I said to him. "Across the river in a valley his house is," | he said to me. Then to him I went Mexican old man. Then I shook hands with him. | "Njo," he said to me. Then he began to tell me something. Then "Where campo | Apatci?" I asked him. Then, "This road there Apatci mucho, there," | he told me. Then, "That way, my friend," I told him. "That way, my friend," | I told him. Then this way constantly (?) this way I came. Bread, | meat sack for me (?) when he put in he gave me.

Then this way where water makes a noise I spent the night. Then wagon its road | only horse ran. Then Eastfork I came-back. Then bread then | I ate. European told me, "Sweet it is," he told me.

Then some, Indians two sat on. Apache they were. Then all I ate. Then | to them I came. Then I asked a question. Then, "Where my brother is he living?" | I said to him. "Tsenanodozo'[3]" he told me. Then this way Indians after me they came. | Nearly they killed me. Then blanket, rope in vain they asked me for. | That because of it nearly they killed me. Then one, "Do not-kill him," | (?) she said of me. Then one blanket to her[4] I gave; the other rope to him[4] I gave. | Then because of that they did-not kill me.

[1] Dictated by C. F. 30, in 1914, who was at that time the only Apache of the White Mountain bands who conducted the ceremony. It is said that his songs came from the Chiracahua Apache. He was killed by a stroke of lightning during the summer of 1919.

Then onward from there I went. "Here you go," he told me. Then downstream | gun they fired, that because of it horse with-me ran up (one side). "They are going to kill me," | I thought. Then on this flat horse with me he stood. Over there two one behind-the other | sat. "This way," he beckoned to me. Then toward them I went. Then to them I came. | Then, "Who are you?" he said-to me. "On the summit Nagoltso[1] they captured me | I am," I told-him. Then they took me off, about me they cried. From there | we went home.

The Gans.

I suppose when it began they came back to them they say, back. Then, "Play as we do," | he told them they say. Then they did that it happened. Then with them they danced | they say. Four nights-were they say. Then four when it will be just four when it was-dawning then | all the young people with them they began to dance they say. Up they say. Here they could hardly see them | it became, they say. Then persons two they left they say. The people | all of them they went with them they say. Then mountain circles-around where it is called | Ganyałtin[2] his voice with it there it-dawns they say. Then Gan their voices come up | where it is-called, life with it across one another where it blows, there where-life is footprints four places | were lying they say. Then at the-center of the sky life four times down one looks it became | they-say. Then mirage four different colors, four at the center of the-sky | they alight it became they say.

Then toward the dawn Gan his voice, clouds dark made of with they came up | it happened they say. Then there life with it sky spotted black, | then lightning black went down it happened they say. There sky its pollen | four places that which he breathed-out, Gan people on it they alighted it happened | they say.

Then south under it Gan blue, his voice cloud blue | made of it rose up it happened they say. There lightning blue struck on-it | it happened they say. There earth its pollen, pollen life | four places that which he breathed on it they alighted it happened they say. Then there | life sky blue spotted.

West Gan yellow spotted, there his voice, cloud yellow

[1] This prayer was made for the narrator himself, perhaps to guard against misfortune as a result of communicating the above to a white man under unusual conditions.

[2] Dictated by C. G. Q. who is the leader of the songs used for adolescent girls. A free translation is given on pp. 119–123.

he talks again. Life with it a long distance it has its end with it earth | on it for us with good fortune when he talks life not having-an end with it | four places with it to me he talks again.

Prayer.

Then I earth on it, life having no end | with it, for me good he talks. Here my life for it I praying I say this. | Boy holy good with it for me you will talk. He, his own life, | mine he will-look after me, saying this I pray I say it.

The Placing of the Earth.

This the large one lies that not I before my eyes was put in-place. This on it | well my mind well my mind was made. Truly, well I heard | it was made. There it was made lying. When there-was no way to make it | then four directions with it the wind was-blowing they say. When there was no way to do |this one earth in it which lives, gopher, then his rope dark by the edge | lies under all-around it. Then here his rope black under it lies. Here | his rope blue under it lies. Here his rope yellow | under it lies. Here his rope white under it lies.

Then over here again wind black, metal black with it | one-inside of the other stood. Then under it standing against it it was-made. Here wind | blue, metal blue with it one inside of the other when it stood, under it standing against it it was made. Here | wind yellow, metal yellow one inside of the other standing, under it standing against it | it was made. Here wind white, metal white with it one inside of the other standing | under it standing against it it was made. Here all it went around.

"Now, well it comes to its place. It does not move. Good it-becomes," he said they say. | "Now, good when it has become what shall we do? This good since it has become for some reason | poorly it will lie. Well, toward itself we will fix it. A hard time | we have-come to it. That beautiful lies. Then good now good | it has-become." Above it he was doing this way.

"Then above it cloud black, cloud black sprinkling moves-around," he said they say. Then, "That will be all right also," | he said they say. Then this with it it will be alive, down he gave; there | this one they say. Then, "Wet alive he made it it is," |

he said they say. "Well (?) us treats," he said | they say. "With-it we will live," he said they say. Then, "Truly | (?) us he treated," he said they say. "Now, what shall we do? | Now, thanks," they said they say.

Then, "Just this way people we are," he said they say. "The one in charge, | then, that one only walking around will be good. Just a good person | walking around," they said they say. This one good they looked at, this person he meant they say. | This sun they spoke about, we that one walking around that one in his-presence | it was done.

Then I suppose this one Ests'unnadlehi, "Something poor that | will be," she said they say. "Just well, first where the sun-strikes there something bad | I will do," when she thought there she sat they say. That one I guess person was living | she was-doing it it was they say. There were no people living it was they-say. Then | people many they should live she did it it was they-say. Then pregnant she became | they say. Then just she only knew it. Then this one one walking with her | he knew it, they say.

Then she gave birth they say. Just there where she sat there she gave birth | they say. Then she gave birth early she returned-to it they say. Early | she returned to it they say. Early she returned-to it they say. Four times | when it was to be the next morning she-returned to it they say, there. Then four when days were | after it-was born she came back with it they say. Then his shoes every-thing | with he was dressed she came back with him they say.

Then, "Just only he is not good," she said they say. "It will-be good this way, | poor thing if I do again," she said. they say. Well, water where it drips | she went back it happened. they say. Then pregnant she became again they say.

Then there she gave birth again they say. Then, "Also the-same way again I will do," she thought they say. Then she gave-birth again, early | she went again to it they say. Early she went-again to it they say. Early | she went again to it they say. Then four when days were after she had given birth she came back with it | they say. Then this way moccasin buckskin all with dressed | she came back with him they say. Then two she had borne they-say.

Then the last one she bore Tobatc'istcini she named him they-say. | Then first she bore Biłnajnołłije she named they say. Then | just these only her children they say.

Then sun by his door water vessel black on it | lines he made

Water male four ways | it rain he made they say. Then this earth those on it the fruits | four ways in lines he made they say. Then, "Thanks, well | he has treated us," he said they say.

Then Ests'unnadlehi by her door water vessel yellow she made| they say. On it lines she made they say. Lightning yellow | four ways under it crossing she made they say. Four places it thundered out she made | they say. Four ways rain female fall she made they say. Then | these fruits four places for them converging lines she made they say. Then, | "Thanks (?) he-treated us," they said they say.

Then "(?) he treated us. Well, it has become," they said they say. | "This grass it shakes; four ways for us with it blows he made," they said | they say. Then "Well, it came to place. Trouble (?) will be none. | Then good ground only with for us will lie," they said they say. | "Still the same way for us it is-finished. It is still that way. Long ago it was. We are still thankful."

"This sun, Ests'unnadlehi, where our father lives, my mother?" | they said they say. "Do not say that; dangerous place he lives," she said they say. | Ests'unnadlehi said it they say. "Dangerous-place he lives, do not say it." | "Nevertheless instruct us," he said they say. "There we two go our father | to him," he said they say.

"There if you go at night only you must travel," she said they say. | "Then in the daytime just there you must sit," she-said they say. "At night only | you must travel," she said they-say. Truly sun, their father, not yet | he saw them | they go to him because, that because, she told them this they say. "Just at night only | we travel. Daytime when it becomes again there we will-travel," he said they say. | "What because of it does she say that?" he thought they say.

Then in the daytime they traveled. Then mosquitoes metal black | their teeth the earth was striped brown. Those when they-approached there was no way | they say. Then rain horizontal-yellow with fell on them. These | their wings were wet, then trees they stuck to, then they went by beyond | they say. "That because-of it she must have said it. Truly, the bad place she told of," they-told each other | they say.

metal black, whirlwind black | with one inside of the other standing for them went twisting through. They went past beyond it they-say. | "Truly a dangerous place she spoke of, that," he said. "Dangerous places among them we go," | he said they say. Then, "Truly our mother spoke, these dangerous places | among them we go," he said they say.

Then to him when they were going sand one cannot step on, with him down | it rolls, then no way there is they say. Then big measuring worm | black rainbow with his back is striped, then with them | beyond it when he bent himself with beyond it they-passed by they say.

Then now to him those two who were going they came near him they say. Then | now around him thirty-two bodies of water around him lay they say. Then | now there was nothing one could do they say. This turquoise bird here he sat | they say. That one showing them the way they walked. Their father toward him water four times lay around him | in that men two he saw go. Then this way bed | under it in there she put them they say.

"Here persons two came. Where did they go?" he said they-say. Woman, | "Nobody," she said they say. Sun, "'I have not-been anywhere,' you tell me," | she said to him they say, his wife. "Here your sons two came," she said they say, "here."

Then, "Well, here you come," he said to them they say. Then he saw them | they say. Facing him they two sat down they say. Then that hanging up like this, | four places they were hanging they say. a smoke; tobacco some where I might smoke I came. Why did-you do that to me?" he said | they say.

"Just that my tobacco," he said to them they say. Then he his pipe | clay was made. Having a hole through it his pipe they say. "I this my pipe; | this my tobacco," he said to him they say. "Your tobacco when it was | why didn't you tell me my son?" he-said to him they say.

There then chair he placed they say. Then there | he went-with them they say. Then between them he sat they say. On-either side of him they two sat | they say. Then, "Sun come, move yourself." Then his sons | looked just alike they say. Then, "Sun move yourself," she said | they say.

Then, "Truly they are my children," he said they say, sun. "What kind | you want for it you are my children?" he said. "This good your speech, | good because of it we came," he said they say. "This first my property which is much | for it you are, immediately that name for me," he told them they say. "Immediately | that you name for me," he said they say. "You I will-give it," he said | they say.

Then his house around it his pets four places there were enclosures for them they say. | Four frightful animals; bear, wolf, panther, those that are dangerous all were his pets | they say.
